

INFOGO - AN INTERNET STARTUP & LIVING WITH THUNDER

A Story of the Rise of the Internet, Power, and the Reality of Alzheimer's and Family Strength

By

Joe Brazeal

[Brandon, Mississippi] Author, technology professional, and systems expert Joe Brazeal announces the release of two powerful works drawn from real life, one from the front lines of the internet's rise, the other from the deeply personal reality of Alzheimer's.

In Infogo - An Internet Startup, Brazeal takes readers into a time when the internet was just beginning to reshape the world. Set against the political rise of Bill Clinton, this is not just a story of innovation, it is a story of power, access, and consequence. Brazeal writes from inside that moment. What began as opportunity became something far more complex, where information carried weight and decisions carried risk. At a certain point, stepping away was no longer optional. The experience shaped the course of his life in lasting and personal ways.

In Living with Thunder - Alzheimer's Untold: A Family's Journey, Brazeal shares a raw and unfiltered account of facing early-onset Alzheimer's within his own family. It is the story of watching gradual change turn into overwhelming reality, and of navigating the emotional, mental, and physical toll that follows.

These are not separate stories. They are two realities from one life, one shaped by power and consequence, the other by love, loss, and resilience.
